

Man in for hiring hit man

By Gwyn Isheane

A man, reportedly allegedly hiring a hit man to murder his father, appeared before Lubkasi Magistrate's Court on Monday.

Nichol Mthembu was arrested in March following the murder of his father, Samuel Mthembu Mafeliso.

The victim was gunned down at his home in Lubkasi in March.

It is unknown what the motive behind the murder is, but it is alleged that the victim neglected to give R20 000 to the accused as promised.

According to Lubkasi Police Spokesperson, Constable Caroline Mkhona, Nichol's first attempt to hire a hit man failed as the man refused to do what Nichol asked of him.

A few days later, the accused allegedly managed to hire a hit man, who is believed to be from 'N' area in Tsamane.

The alleged hit man is still at large. Police are looking for Godfrey Mphahlele who can possibly aid their investigation regarding the hit man.

Police said the man who was allegedly first approached to murder the victim, informed the police of the accused's alleged scheme after the murder took place. They also said that the accused confirmed to supplying the hit man used to kill the victim. The community was set to march to the court during the accused's appearance, but could not because their march was not legalised. The accused will appear again in court on July 26.

Makhushane tribe hit by ongoing controversy

By Gwyneth

The Makhushane tribe has been hit by ongoing controversy lately. A court order was obtained recently by Chief Andries Makalole Mafay of Makhushane village, leaving his village in an unending legal activities.

The court order apparently comes in the wake of the ongoing controversy at the tribe about issues of land and the suspension of the administrator and council members.

The village accused the administrator and council members of maladministration, and suspended them without any legal authority.

According to the court order, Masekane Makama, Mafay Mafay, Maphahle Mafay and Gwinye Mafay are interdicted from using the official stamps and letterheads of the Makhushane Traditional Council without written consent from the chief and his councillors.

The court found the suspension of the administrator and councillors unlawful and the respondents were ordered not to prevent the chief, administrator and his councillors from performing their official duties.

It is alleged that the respondents want the chief to be removed from his position because he has brought the tribe into disrepute.

A mass meeting was held two weeks ago to discuss issues affecting the tribe. It is noteworthy that the respondents did not attempt to attend the meeting, allegedly because they were honouring the chief's wishes.

The Herald has been unable to locate and communicate with any of the respondents, except for Makama, who refused to comment on the matter.

SAPS arrest 19 for various criminal activities

Nineteen people were arrested by the Namagale police over the past week for engaging in various criminal activities.

Two males were arrested for housebreaking and theft, one for theft and one female for being in possession of dog.

Six males and two females were arrested for public drinking, and two females and one male for selling liquor without a license.

One male was arrested for violating the road traffic act, one male and one female for malicious damage to property and one male for failing to appear before the court of law.
